

Blanche Fedders

Blanche was Fernwood's self-appointed morality police. She frequently started protests against high prices at the Federated grocery store or against sex on television. Each protest had a silly acronym like F.A.T.S.O. for the grocery or D.I.R.T.Y. (Don't Instill Randy Thoughts in the Young).

Her husband Leroy was the Fernwood High School basketball coach. He too had puritan thoughts about how his players should behave. The two had a daughter who had run off to be free of her parents' "morality" and specifically her mother's overbearing nagging.

When Mary Hartman's chicken soup killed Leroy, Blanche was less than distraught. Mary felt worse than Blanche did. Mary's guilt got her a Cadillac.

Blanche was played by Reva Rose.

Back to "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" Characters

Back to "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" Pages

Back to The Mary Kay Place Place