

Leroy Fedders

Leroy Fedders was Tom Hartman's coach when Tom was on the high school basketball team. Coach Fedders always said that the boys could come to him with anything...anything, as long as it was not about sex. Sadly, that's what Tom wanted to discuss when he went back to his old locker room.

Leroy was married to Fernwood's consumer crusader Blanche Fedders. He had to bail her out of jail when she got arrested for picketing the Federated grocery store.

It wasn't Leroy's day when he had the flu and Mary Hartman came by with her chicken soup. See, he had loaded up on medicine and liquor, so it just stands to reason that he'd end up drowned face-down in Mary's soup. Mary was devastated. Blanche hardly seemed to care.

Leroy was played by Norm Alden.

Back to "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" Characters

Back to "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" Pages

Back to The Mary Kay Place Place